City Council Retreats But Gracefully

At Wednesday night's council meeting the members voted that the fire department engine drivers receive their raise of pay without signing the pledges of co-operation to the city council by which the council hoped to place the engine drivers under its direct control. Instead, they are subject to the by-laws of the fire department, as they always have been.

This is the last of a series of acts by which the city council members have retreated during the past week to leave the Fire Department in control of the field of battle.

Saturday it became known that Vincent Torras would continue to be fire chief, "for life if he wants to be" volunteer firemen assured the Pine Cone-Cymbal, though last week they were so sure that the members of the city council were after Torras' scalp that they asked the Pine Cone-Cymbal to print their resolution in support of their chief and make public the story of the battle for ascendancy on the part of the city council. This the Pine Cone was pleased to do, and was in receipt of the volunteers' thanks this week as they came individually to say that the making public of the city council members' activities in the fire department had so salutary an effect on the council that the contemplated walk-out of the volunteers was now unnecessary.

An amusing repercussion was the addressing of a letter to the Pine Cone-Cymbal signed by one of the criticized officials crying "misrepresentation" and "exaggeration," a futile face-saving device in that the gentleman signing the document was the same who, though he had emitted yelps of anguish, had nevertheless admitted that the story was true when we phoned him for verification before publication.

Other business at the council meeting was the announcement that there would be no community Christmas tree as planned because of the desire of the council to save electricity for defense purposes as requested by the government.

It was voted to continue the

S.P.C.A. Refused to Take Rabid Dog Owner Avers

Mrs. Frida Sharpe, Second and Lobos, was notified Wednesday that her Belgian sheep dog which had died Sunday, had been a victim of rabies. The report followed an examination of the brain sent to the University of California laboratories by Monterey County Health authorities.

Mrs. Sharpe said that the dog first showed signs of illness Thursday. As she was not well enough to care for it properly, she sent for the S.P.C.A. to dispose of him Friday. The S.P.C.A. official refused to take the dog to the animal shelter, and expressed the opinion that there was "nothing the matter with the dog," according to Mrs. Sharpe.

She sent for a veterinarian Saturday who didn't call for the dog until Sunday and then placed it in the S.P.C.A. animal shelter where it died.

Monterey Peninsula Winces As City Papers Pour It On; Von Urban Trial Juicy Morsel for Smelly Publicity

Not since Aimee Semple McPherson chose to conceal herself in Carmel in the purple interval between her "disappearance" and "resurrection" has the Monterey Peninsula been so unpleasantly deluged with distasteful publicity as this week when San Francisco newspapers chose to blazon on their front pages the intimate testimony of the witnesses at the Rudolph Von Urban trial which opened Tuesday in Judge Ray Baugh's court in Monterey and was continuing unabated when the Pine Cone went to press.

Meanwhile, Von Urban charged with practicing medicine without a license, poses with his wife and dog for press photographers and gives out with interviews on his theory of the electrical attraction between male and female with the female carrying the positive charge because of her greater number of chromosomes than the "negative" male, the moisture of the kiss making a good conductor for the interchange of electrical currents.

In court he sat with his councils watching with a benign expression the procession of prosecution witnesses, his former patients, who testified that they had gone to him on advice of their physicians, that he had questioned them as to their marital relations and prescribed a course of treatment which one described as "horrible" and another stated she didn't carry out because she didn't believe sexual relief was "that important." Two of the witnesses had recourse to dark glasses to bolster their courage when describing their conversation with Von Urban, and three of them broke into nervous weeping when reporting the treatment suggested.

Other witnesses were Barbara J. Hampton, Carmel, practical nurse who stated that Von Urban had arranged for a Mrs. Daphne Ferris to stay in her care at her home on 12th and Dolores, and that Dr. Von Urban had made frequent calls there and consulted with the patient. Following her, Dr. Walter Schaller, professor of medicine and neural psychiatry at the Stanford Medical School testified he had been called in to examine Mrs. Daphne Ferris, had found her a mental case and recommended that she be institutionalized.

The prosecution emphasized early in the proceedings that treating for mental as well as physical ailments constituted practicing medicine without a license.

In The Mellow Fullness of His Years Pal Passes

By Irene Alexander

Carmel's beloved canine mascot died of a heart attack at 7:15 a.m. yesterday morning in the home of his friend and benefactor, Mr. A. J. ("King") Mederos, on Lincoln and Eleventh, at the ripe old age of well past fourteen years.

Perhaps no other dog ever entwined himself more deeply into the affections of an entire community than huge, lumbering, tawny-coated Pal, with his mixed heritage of airdale, English bull and a touch of Great Pyrenees. And certainly no other dog enjoyed a fuller and more satisfying life.

He was born in Sparks, that railway junction on the outskirts of Reno, in 1929, and from all accounts, inherited something of his fine flair for public relations from his mother, protegee of all the train crews, official greeter of every incoming train. Pal was a mere stripling when he was brought to Carmel, late in 1929, by Cheri Wild and presented to Bruce and Rupert Kendall.

It was through no lack of loving care on the part of his two young masters that he became the Town Dog. Pal loved Carmel—every bit of it, and every one of its inhabitants—from his earliest puphood he accepted himself joyously and serenely as a Public Character; he invited no neuroses by stifling his strong, dominating gregarious urge. His wagging tail and sociable grin were irrestistible—and he knew it. Domesticity, with its fixed hours for bones and bed, might do for other dogs, It bored Pal.

By the time the Kendall family moved away from Carmel their erstwhile pet had wholeheartedly adopted the town, established his own routine and assumed certain official duties which nothing could persuade him to relinquish. For many years he was the village Grover Whalen. At the foot of Ocean avenue, conveniently near the hospitable butcher shop in Kip's, over whose counter passed many a handout of hamburger and succulent bone, subsidized by his friends, who were legion. Pal would take his ungainly stance, watching incoming traffic, eager to compliment visitor and returning citizen alike with his exuberant welcome.

Life smiled upon him. When he was hungry, there was always a friend to proffer food; along his primrose path were pans of water, kept especially for him; and at the first faint whiff of the approaching pound wagon, partisan hands hustled him safely out of sight. When the dog-catcher from "over the hill" finally caught him napping, and word of his ignominious incarceration spread like wildfire through the town, Bruce Monahan, the Boy Scouts and others of his outraged friends, rose to the occasion, took up a collection, bailed him out and bought him a license.

But that noble neck was never designed to wear a collar. A vast red ribbon bow it wore, invariably, come Christmas time, lovingly affixed by another of his admirers, Daisy Bostick. And frequently it carried penciled notes, giving coun-

Sanitary Board Questions High Trucking Tariff

The Carmel Sanitary District Board became involved in the problem of war time transportation at its regular monthly meeting Monday night at the district office.

In giving an account of the bills for the month totalling $735.77, Secretary Bernard Rowntree included $41 for feight charged by a trucking company for hauling chlorine from Pittsburg, California, to the Carmel treatment works.

Board member Allen Knight expressed the opinion that in view of the fact that the charge before the war had been $13 for hauling the same load over the same distance, the present charge seemed excessive. The board, after some discussion, delegated Secretary Rowntree to see if some other arrangement could be made for the transportation of the ton of chlorine that is required every three months in the operation of the treatment works.

The financial report showed a total of $541.92, of which $136.37 had been on hand, $405.55, derived from permits and sewer work.

Corum Jackson to Lead Carols at Election Meeting

Election of officers for the coming year will be the important event of the evening when members of the Carmel Business Association meet next Wednesday evening at 8 p.m. at the La Ribera Hotel.

The meeting will not be a dinner meeting as has been the custom at Christmas in former years because of "point trouble" hotels run into when there is so large a group to feed.

However, President LaFrenz assures members that the meeting will be full of Christmas spirit, none-the-less, for Corum Jackson will lead members in carol-singing in preparation for Christmas Eve caroling.

On the business slate, in addition to election of officers, Eben Whittlesey's membership committee will report on the progress of the membership drive. Committee members are Noel O. Van Bibber, Helen Carter, Lloyd Weer, Ernest Morehouse, J. O. Handley, and Sam DeMello.

The committee in charge of nominations is J. O. Handley, chairman, Wick W. Parsons, and Ernest Morehouse.

Christians rejoice in secret beauty and bounty, hidden from the world, but known to God," (p. 15).

TUESDAY'S GIRL

Lieutenant and Mrs. Wilfred O. Chancellor of Carmel are the parents of Leslie Luverne Chancellor, who arrived at the Community hospital on Tuesday, December 7.

Pilots Must Be Weather Wise Navy Man Tells Lions

"Every navy pilot must be able to read a weather map so that he will have a reasonably thorough knowledge of the kind of weather he might encounter during a patrol or a specific mission," Lt. H. G. Buckwalter of Del Monte Pre-flight told the Carmel Lions at their dinner meeting Tuesday night.

Navy pilots are trained thoroughly and adequately to meet every kind of weather situation, he said. From recent reports at Attu and the Gilbert Islands knowing weather was ammunition for our navy pilots. Without accurate forecasting probably many more lives would have been lost and our task force less effective. Knowing the weather is only part of the navy pilot's training and understanding. Forecasting climatic conditions is his task also.

There are four main factors in shaping weather. Atmospheric pressure, or the extent to which air piles up on the earth's surface varies from one place to another. Heavy air increases barometic pressure, light air decreases it. When the air is light it ascends allowing space for heavier air. This inrush makes for bad weather.

Moisture in air accounts for the humidity. When moist, warm air rises it cools making various cloud formations, and may result in rain.

Temperature is the third factor. This produces fog, rain, or snow depending on atmospheric conditions over a given area.

Wind is the last important factor in shaping the weather. Navy pilots may have a choice of strong winds . . . assisting or holding them back. Tail winds conserve gasoline and increase speed over the ground. Also, it is important to know where gustiness occurs so that landing, if made at all, is done with caution and care.

Weston Exhibit Opens Art Building In New York Museum

A portrait exhibition by Edward Weston was chosen to open the new building, devoted to photography, recently completed as a part of the New York Museum of Modern Art, and is currently attracting hundreds of visitors and much favorable notice from the critics.

Included in the panel of five portraits which greets the public as it enters the door is one of Carmel's Johan Hagemeyer. This portrait, together with sixty-nine other Weston pictures, is on extended loan to the Museum, which in addition has purchased fifty examples of the artist's photography for its permanent collection.

"ALTOGETHER FITTING"

With the sale of Christmas seals in its fourth week, Peter J. Ferrante, of Monterey, president of the county tuberculosis association, explained Saturday that December 11, is the 100th anniversary of the birth of Robert Koch, discoverer of the tubercle bacillus.

Seal sale returns to date reveal about one-third return from mailings sent out, and Mrs. William Hargis, executive secretary of the association in Salinas, urged today that all checks be sent in promptly to avoid the rush of Christmas greetings in the mail.

Tragic End to Xmas Homecoming for Goddard Grandchild

Mrs. Ella S. Goddard of Carmel was summoned to Los Angeles on Wednesday morning by word of an especially poignant tragedy. The death of her three-year-old grandson, William Charles Beverstock, occurred in that city at five p.m. on Tuesday as the result of a taxi cab crash in which his paternal grandmother, Mrs. C. W. Beverstock, was seriously injured and from which his mother, Mrs. R. C. Beverstock, is now suffering extreme shock.

The child and his grandmother had just arrived safely in Los Angeles by plane from Caracas, Venezuela, where Mr. R. C. Beverstock has been serving as U. S. vice-consul, and were visiting in the Santa Monica home of Mrs. Beverstock's sister, Mrs. Ruth Goddard Bixler, enroute to spend the Christmas holidays with Mrs. Ella Goddard in Carmel. Mr. Beverstock was unable to accompany them on this occasion due to the fact that he has just been transferred to the post of secretary to the Embassy in Tegucigalpa, Honduras.

Little William Charles, who spent a great part of his life traveling by plane with his parents throughout Central America, is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Beverstock. His uncle Lt. Commander David S. Goddard, U.S.N. son of Mrs. Ella Goddard and well-known in Carmel from his boyhood, is now serving as executive officer of the naval training station at St. Petersberg, Florida, in charge of 6,000 trainees there. With him at present are Mrs. David Goddard and their baby daughter, Catherine.

Contrary to a report printed in one of the Peninsula papers, the Barndoor Canteen, popular Saturday evening feature of the Carmel USO, is very definitely continuing.

Following next Saturday's entertainment and floor show, six service men from the Fourth Army, experts in the schottische and the polka, will give an exhibition of their skill and also teach the intricate steps to those interested in learning.

Thursday, December 16, has been dedicated by the USO to boys in the service who wish to bring their Christmas gifts to the club room and wrap them there.

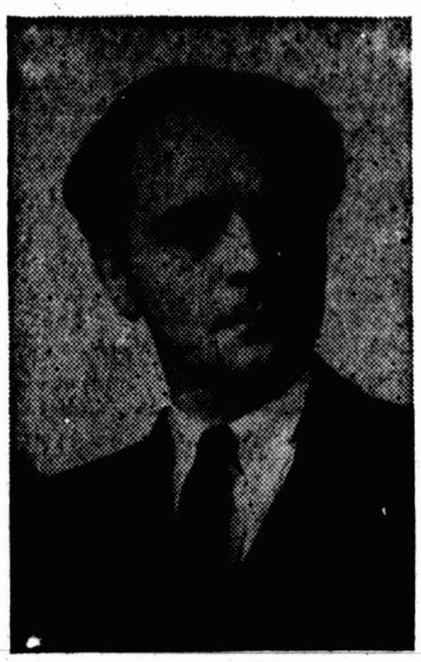
THE WEEK'S BABY

Herbert Ganahl Bivens was born at the Community hospital on Sunday, December 5, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Bivens of Pebble Beach.



ALEXANDER BRAILOWSKY

The secret of a great teacher is revealed in an interview which Alexander Brailowsky, the celebrated pianist who plays here on Sunday afternoon, December 19, at the Sunset auditorium, gave recently regarding his master pedagogue, Theodor Leschetizky. Mr. Brailowsky, who was the star pupil of the Leschetizky school in Vienna, said:

"Leschetizky put 'tone' first and foremost in his list of technical needs. Everything else was secondary. More than this, he did not care how the student got the tone as long as the tone itself was there. It has been made to appear that he had some patent methods for producing tone. This was not so. He had his own ideas, it is true; but he once said that if the student played with his nose and got the right tone it would be perfectly satisfactory to him.

"Secondly, his respect for the individuality of the pupil was wonderful. Every pupil was a new problem. Each student was a human canvas upon which he might paint a work of art, if he learned the pupil's own musical inclinations. It is for this reason that Leschetizky pupils are all different. There are certain earmarks of the fire and finish which the master brought to them, but these never altered the fundamental nature of the artist or his playing."

Hi Students Plan Paper Drive for Junior Red Cross

A town-wide paper drive was inaugurated this week by the Junior Red Cross of Carmel high school, providing a distinct challenge to civic pride, since the drive is a spirited competition between our youngsters and the student body of Monterey high school on a two to one basis.

All funds raised will be donated to the American Red Cross, and the drive will continue until the middle of January. Arnold Pilling, president of Carmel high Junior Red Cross, working with his committee of nine, has divided the town into districts, and each district is to be canvassed exhaustively. Citizens are asked to tie newspapers, magazines and other scrap paper in three separate bundles respectively, and to keep such bundles inside their homes until called for. In previous paper drives, much material has been wasted by leaving bundles exposed to inclement weather on porches and doorsteps.

Assisting committee chairman Pilling are the following high school students: Russell Bohlke, Bill Askew, Del Wilson, Angelo Lucido, Walter Warren, George Moller, Ben Viljoen, Hamilton Bartlett and Everett May.

The following editorial dropped out of the mail last night, and though we strongly suspect the identity of the writer who signs himself W. E. P. we cannot prove our surmise, so we maintain a discreet silence while we pass on his words which coinside very much with our own sentiments.

"There have been all sorts of drives for all sorts of objects, stemming from the nation wide war effort, and there will be more, until the war ends—with victory. Those at home enjoying the comforts of life should, and usually are, willing to lend a hand in any worthy cause intended to aid the families of our fighting men overseas, especially when such an effort calls for no sacrifice of anything of actual, intrinsic worth. For example:

"What are you going to do with that old coat that's been hanging in the closet in the hall for so many years? And what of that suit of clothes that Dad has outgrown since he acquired his new waistline? How about sending these to Bundles for America, along with any other castoff clothing you may have in that cedar chest or box? You may have the assurance they will be given to needy families of our men in the service and will be deeply appreciated.

"Have you ever thought of that? Well, give it a thought; it will be repaid by your conscience. Remember the boy who went overseas and left his job and family? Maybe that family needs your help. If this appeal strikes a responsive chord with you please contact your Bundles for America, Dolores street, and let them put your old clothing to good use."

Lieutenant William Sharpe, better known to his many Carmel friends as "Beans," is now somewhere in England, serving as first pilot of a B-24 Liberator. Lieut. Sharpe began his training for the Air Force in the spring of 1942 at Santa Ana and after primary work at Cal Aero and pursuit training at Minter Field, Bakersfield, he received his commission at Roswell, New Mexico. Training in 4-motor bombers followed at Clovis, N.M., Pueblo, Col., and Salina, Kansas, during which time he had the distinction of being the youngest first pilot in the Second Air Force. Following a period of final work with his crew in Topeka, Kansas, Lt. Sharpe was sent overseas. The following letter was received this week by his mother, Mrs. Frida Sharpe:

Dear Frida:

Am now "somewhere in England" having the time of my life. I tell you deary, these English gals are more sport than a barrel of the proverbial monkeys. Nearly died laughing last night at my first English dance. Find the Boompsadaisy great sport. Ha! I think the people here have twice the fun that Americans do on one tenth the income. The gals last night were in an average income bracket and made two pounds a week. Cigarettes are 2/6 or fifty cents a pack and food here is expensive for the nutritional value. However every gal I've seen has big biceps from working in the pottery—making glass to you. Cabs are "terribly expensive"—four of us paid a crown apiece to ride twenty miles. About a dollar. In short I can't help saving money over here.

I must say I've really been "drinking in atmosphere" since my arrival and enjoying every bit of it. Have finally got the English money system all figured out. One simply puts all one's loose change on the bar and lets the barmaid take what she wants. Scotch whiskey is very costly, about two bits a drink. And the beer! Their "best mild" tastes about as powerful as lemonade but when you get outside you can't even hit the cobblestones with your hat. It's too bad Americans can't see a real blackout, and suits with one pocket, and no coats, and little kids: "Have ye got eny Amer-i-can coiens?" "Do ye have eny sweets?" "Eny chewing goim?" Kids are all thin. Sixty per cent of the cows have T.B. and the rest have undulant fever. Meat is non-existent save for G.I. versions of Spam.

Five of us took a seven mile hike yesterday cross country. One of those cold wintry days with the wind whistling over the hilltops and the sun getting an occasional look at us through a batch of jumbled clouds. The landscapes are intensely detailed in their beauty. One enjoys the land more at close quarters, with its hedges, fences, brooks, farms, stock and the gnarled and bent up old trees. The panoramas are, in contrast to ye rugged Bixby, picturesque and peaceful. It's hard to believe this very country had the hell bombed out of it not so long ago.

Love,
Bill.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

The Day of Judgment

Carmel High has just had its first "Block C" initiation in two years.

It started last Thursday when the ten new members showed up with paddles and unwilling torsos. Thursday and Friday were warm days for the new members.

Saturday the Block C "stooges" were put through their paces at an initiation dance. A few of the things they did were: Put on a melodrama with one boy playing all the parts, a peanut race in which all contestants were encouraged with paddles to greater speed, and a song and dance. The dance also was enjoyed by some Pacific Grove boys, some Preflight Cadets, and some parents. Some of the familiar faces seen were: Bill Monroe, Jo An Thorne, Marion Dowgaillo, Carla Le Pori, Russell Bohlke, Emile Passailaigue, and Barbara Bolin.

—Del Wilson and Angelo Lucido, Jr.

Volley Ball Tournament

The girls' gym classes are in the middle of a volley ball tournament. After a few weeks of practicing skills, Miss Sheldon was confident that we could play well enough to stage a tournament. Here are the returns of the first round.

Gym period II

The captains were Noreen Kelsey and Mary Ada Torras. Torras' team won 36 to 32, a very close game where Kelsey's team came through gallantly during the last two minutes of play to fall short by four tallies.

In the sixth period class Betty Powell's team put Sue Dekkers' team on the low end of a 44 to 13 score.

Betty Dougherty's team took Sunny Cooke's team 35 to 29, and Mary Jane Reel's team won from Jo An Thorne's 35 to 28.

These last two games were played during seventh period.

—Ann Casati

The Bug Hunters

"There it goes." "Did you catch it?" "Ah, what a fine object to study!" Those were the words uttered by Miss Sener's seventh period Science Class. Why were these brave hunters in such a dither? Because, they were after that rare and ferocious character —the ant.

If you come by Carmel high school at one p.m., you'll find Miss Sener's bug hunters on the prowl for tastier specimens.

—Betty Lou Fonteneau

Bond Drive

The bond drive is finally ended with Carmel High going over the top. The bond drive was under the able direction of Joan Jonda. Joan took this drive from scratch and turned it into the most successful one this school has seen yet. It was suitably ended on December 7th. The money taken in will pay for one jeep which will aid in the winning of the present war. All the classes donated large amounts but the class which was in the lead, as far as donations are concerned, was the eighth grade. The eighth grade was also over the top in the old clothes drive. The present eighth grade is one of the most promising classes this school has seen in a long time. —Angelo Lucido, Jr.

Moving Picture

On Tuesday, November 30, the students of Carmel high school enjoyed a moving picture entitled "Land of Liberty." The cinema was an hour and twenty minutes showing.

It was presented by the Standard Oil Company and was edited by Cecil B. De Mille.

The film was based on the history of the United States. It began in the Colonial period. The first American Army was seen in all of its undying fighting glory, Valley Forge was relived. Then the signing of the Constitution was presented. The second part depicted the struggle between the Americans and British, the victory of Andrew Jackson and the American Army's.

Then came the Alamo and the movement westward. The film gave a brief review of the conquering of "Yellow Jack." The World War was then re-enacted. The film ended with a survey of the freedom of America.

Carmel Woman's Club Decorates New Quarters

A gala housewarming spirit prevailed at the Carmel Woman's club meeting on Monday afternoon, its first gathering in the new club headquarters at the Girl Scout House.

Under the capable and energetic leadership of Mrs. Helen Clark Cranston, president, the club members have made over the assembly room of the Scout House into a thoroughly charming and artistic setting for future meetings. The raftered ceiling has been brightened with cream paint and the blue-gray tones of the side walls intensified by drapes and curtains of Della Robbia blue.

The greater part of this transformation has been brought about during the past weeks by the hands of the Carmel clubwomen themselves, since only the painting and necessary carpentry was done professionally. Kitchen shelves and cupboards shine from soap and water scrubbing. Mrs. Saxton Pope and Miss Amy Campbell are responsible for selecting the materials, hemming, pressing and hanging fresh, new curtains. It was their ingenuity too, which gave the room something of the cozy intimacy of a little theatre by the arrangement of backdrop drapes, dividing valance and ample platform at the far end.

House committee chairman Mrs. M. D. Conn, with her assistants, Miss Frances Hartwell and Miss Agnes Knight, carried on from there, arranging furnishings and books, gathered, not with the aid of a moving van in these days of labor shortage, but transported, a chair and an armful of books at a time, by the members themselves.

Decorations for Monday's meeting were in charge of Miss Flora Hartwell, who with exquisite taste, carried out the Della Robbia color scheme with her arrangement of burnished crabapples, bittersweet sent all the way from Ohio, and glistening magnolia leaves in a centerpiece on the lace cloth of the tea table. Long, graceful branches of gray acacia adroned the long table against the side windows, and there was a hint of the season in the red candles and the silver Christmas tree ornaments with their bands of blue and red, gleaming among the leaves. The wide mantel over the fireplace was trimmed with pine cones, cedar branches and big, ripe apples which caught and carried over the Della Robbia tints from the tea table.

Presiding at the tea table was Mrs. William E. Heathorne, hospitality chairman, who assisted by Mrs. Abbie McReary, Mrs. Louise Grigsby and Miss Elizabeth Allcutt, dispensed a varied assortment of delicious canapes, their color scheme harmonizing with the decorations, chocolate cake and tea, following the business meeting and the address of the day, by Mr. Newton Hereford Bell.

Especially appropriate to the season was the talk delivered by Mr. Bell on Christmas in Bethlehem, a narrative of his own experience in 1938.

There was little peace and good will in the air on that occasion, he explained. The Road to Jericho had been blocked by fighting Arabs, and the Field of the Shepherds, where Mr. Bell attended the traditional ceremonies held on the afternoon preceding Christmas Eve, was ringed about by machine guns. Yet in spite of all this, he found the occasion deeply impressive. As the afternoon waned into a silver twilight, then deepened into dusk, a single bright star appeared over Bethlehem. Later, when the bonfires were kindled, unleavened bread and barbecued lamb, in commemoration of the Last Supper, were served to the multitude, among whom, most fittingly, were many simple shepherd folk. Mr. Bell noted their custom of leading, rather than driving their sheep in herds. He attended the Christmas Eve ceremonies in the Church of the Nativity, before the door of which was spread a carpet for the procession of priests and singing choir boys to enter. In the grotto below the altar, where a great five-pointed star in the pavement bears the English inscription "This is the place where Christ was born" he was especially touched by the look of ecstacy on the tear-stained faces of the worshippers.

Edward Arnold, father of Virginia Weidler in "The Youngest Profession," now at the Carmel Theatre, shows his disapproval of Raymond Roe, his daughter's boy friend. Arnold's dancing partner is Marta Linden, his wife. Arnold has innocently become involved in a slight scandal through misunderstanding. The story deals with the doings of a group of autograph hounds after famous movie star signatures and is replete with laughs.

Police Pick Up Bee-Bee Gunmen

Two Pacific Grove boys who were too swift on the trigger—with a bee-bee gun, were picked up by the Carmel police here Saturday, on information from the Pacific Grove police department.

The boys who work in Carmel were wanted by Grove police for shooting out some thirty street light bulbs with a bee-bee gun.

Sports

Despite the fact that the game wasn't appreciated so much at the start, volley ball has been gaining in popularity. In the first two games Earl Wight's team whipped Billy Ford's, 10-5 and 9-8, However, on Monday the Fords made a snappy comeback by slaughtering their opponents 21-4.

In the only intramural football game of the week the Zekes whipped the Pennygrabbers, 8-0. Due to the fact of "absentees" the Avengers had to forfeit to the Morons, 1-0.

Honey

One day a man was going to get some honey, but the bees would not let him get it; so I ran down to see what he was doing. I got there, but I came right back up! The man ran too. I didn't look back. That evening I went down and got some honey. Boy did it taste good!

Can you guess why the man and I ran away the first time?

Dr. and Mrs. Sharmon's Visit to Our Room

Chinese write with brushes instead of pens. Their brushes are made of bamboo and have very fine hairs. They paint with them as well as write. The ink which they use comes in cake form. They grind the ink into powder, on a little stone, then mix it with water. They can make it in any shade of gray or black they want to. The pen holders and rulers are made of bamboo.

The paper most commonly used is mulberry, bamboo, and rice paper. Rice paper is very brittle and mulberry paper is very thin, so thin you can see through it.

Dr. Sharmon showed us a book that was nearly 900 years old. It is one of the oldest books in the world. The man who discovered it died about four weeks ago. It was found in a cave in northwestern China. It was about 26 ft. long and 22 inches wide.

Dr. and Mrs. Sharmon gave a very interesting talk on Chinese writing and literature. They showed us many things. Mrs. Sharmon gave Mrs. Uzzell and class some Chinese writing paper and envelopes. The envelopes open at the top instead of the side.

—Jennefer Lloyd, grade 7

Book Review

I am reading a book called "Stowaways in Paradise," by Don Blanding, who once lived in Carmel.

It is about a boy named Mickey who lived in San Francisco. His mother and father died and he lived with some people he knew. He sold papers. He met a boy named Pua who came from the Hawaiian Islands. They sneaked on board a liner going there. They lived with Pua's aunts and his cousins. They had lots of fun together and got into lots of mischief. —Jimmy Hare, grade 6

Our Chinese Dinner

Mrs. Uzzell's 7th grade is studying China. Friday night some of our class went to the Asia Inn and had a Chinese dinner. Some of us ate with chopsticks, others gave up after one try. After dinner we went to the movie. We all had a swell time. Those present were: Floyd Adams, Howard De Amaral, Dick Garguilo, Dan Holmes, Donald Korb, Charles Olmsted, Anne Wales, Mary Lodwell, Joan Dillingham, Joan Templin, Joan Fleig, Jeannette Reel, Jennefer Lloyd, and Mrs. Uzzell.

Last Saturday my brother and I were playing on a rock. I saw a duck floating around in the water so I thought I would try to catch it. I did, and we took it home. We called "Lemons" Pet Shop and Mr. Lemon said at this time of year the waves are so high that the ducks get knocked around. All the oil on their feathers comes off so they can't swim.

Mr. Lemon also told us what to feed the duck. I gave it some bacon and it shook its head. Then I made a box for it. We found the name of this kind of duck. It is a "Helldiver."

—John Kaye, grade 5

My Best Friend

I have an uncle. His name is Albert. He is nine years old. I like to play with him. I am eight years old. He lives in Colorado Springs.

—Alice Ann McKelvy, grade 3

My best friend is Mary Louise. Her hobby is collecting shells. When she collects them, she puts then in a box and saves them.

—Joy De Amaral, grade 3

My best friend is Santa Claus. I like him because he brings us toys every year.

—Leroy Palmer, grade 3

Armine Von Tempski

The death of Armine von Tempski Ball, 44, well known author and lecturer who made her home in Carmel for several years, occurred suddenly on Thursday, December 2, in Fresno.

The backgorund for twelve or more Armine von Tempski novels and a number of articles published in British and Canadian magazines was inspired by her birthplace, Maui, T. H. One of her recent books, Born in Paradise, was written during the period that she and her husband, Alfred Ball, occupied an apartment in Vagabond House, Don Blanding's Carmel home.

Mr. and Mrs. Ball moved from Carmel two years ago and following a brief time spent in the Sierra mountains, have lived in southern California.

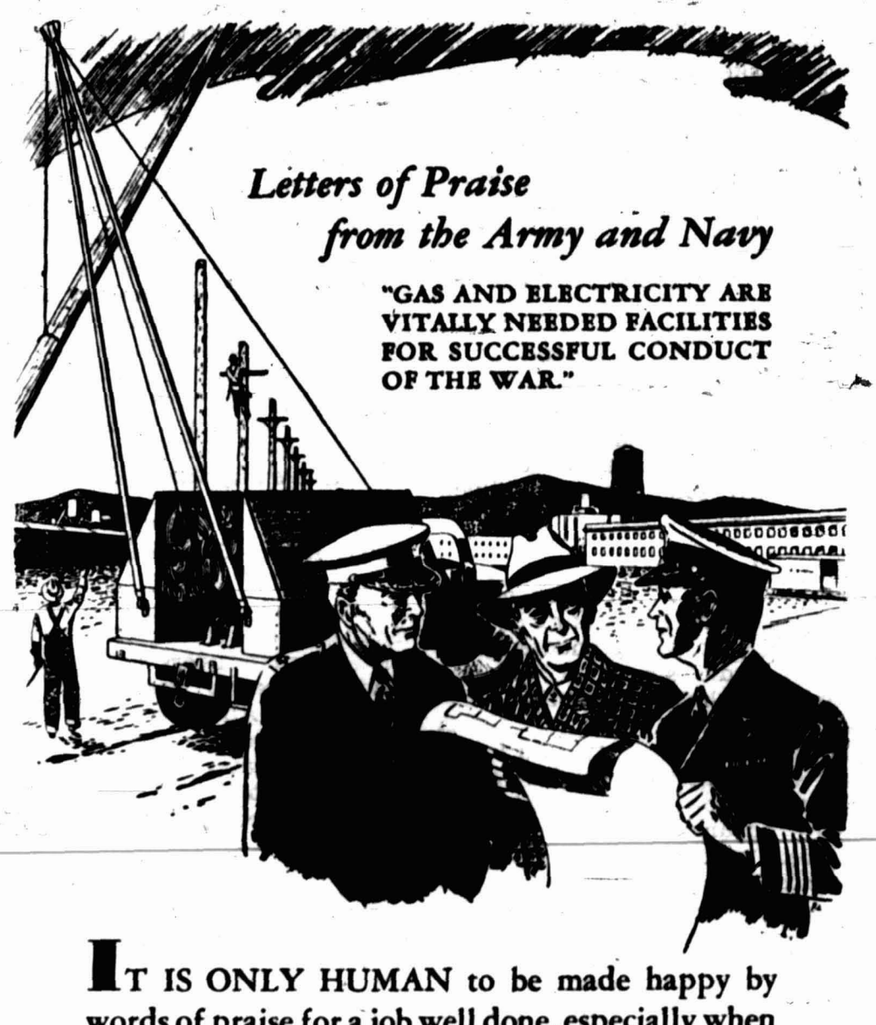
Letters of Praise from the Army and Navy

"GAS AND ELECTRICITY ARE VITALLY NEEDED FACILITIES FOR SUCCESSFUL CONDUCT OF THE WAR."



IT IS ONLY HUMAN to be made happy by words of praise for a job well done, especially when such praise comes from high ranking officers of the Army and Navy.

At any rate, that is the way the men and women of this company feel about letters of commendation received from Lieutenant General Delos C. Emmons, United States Army, and Vice Admiral J. W. Greenslade of the United States Navy. They are pleased and proud and determined to keep vitally needed gas and electricity flowing in full supply—on time—all the time. Below are excerpts from the letters:

From Admiral Greenslade:

"I am informed by the Inspector of Naval Material and by other officers of my staff having cognizance that the Pacific Gas and Electric Company met wartime demands swiftly and efficiently while at the same time continuing to supply the increased population of the district with essential services. . . . The Company is serving, or has undertaken to serve over a Million Kilowatts of Electricity and over Twelve Billion Feet of Natural Gas to Army and Navy establishments and War Industries. . . . All hands in the Pacific Gas and Electric Company should feel that they have played their part in establishing new construction and production records in this district. . . ."

From General Emmons:

. . . "In view of the splendid performance of the men and women of your organization during the period of emergency, I desire to record my word of commendation to them. The area embraced in the Western United States is a particularly vital and critical one in this war. It has been necessary to construct and operate numerous flying fields . . . to construct shipyards and repair docks and other marine facilities. . . . It is gratifying to know that all of the demands which have been made upon your people and your facilities have been met with most praiseworthy performance and that every reasonable expectation fulfilled."

To all the gas and electric customers, the men and women of this company in turn say—"Thanks for your help" through your voluntary conservation in the use of gas and electricity in the home. Conservation is helping us and helping the war effort.

Vaughn Duvall Home, Participated in Sicilian Invasion

Vaughn "Tack," Duvall, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Duvall, arrived home on a thirty-day leave Wednesday to the surprise of his parents who thought he was somewhere in the Mediterranean. When they had last heard from him he had been on the Boise with another Carmel boy Franklyn Rhys Smith, and had participated in the Sicilian invasion.

A little over a year ago he and Smith had seen action in the engagement in which the Boise participated in sinking twelve Jap vessels, and had later limped into an eastern port to be given a hero's welcome.

Reason for his unexpected leave home is his transfer from the Boise to another Navy vessel which made port at Philadelphia last week.

Macahilig said he left the car parked on the east side of Camino Real but the brakes must have slipped resulting in the careen across the street and the damage to the Dennis garage and adjacent fence.

Mrs. Low Reviews "Under Cover" for Women's Dem. Club.

The Women's Democratic club held its meeting December 3 at the home of Mrs. L. O. Kellogg. There was a large attendance and members and guests were enthusiastic over the main feature of the program a review of "Under Cover" by Mrs. Paul Low. It was a difficult assignment to distill the contents of a book of more than five hundred pages into a clear and complete story of the author's investigations of subversive individuals and groups but Mrs. Low succeeded admirably in following the continuity highlighted by selected readings from the book.

Fortune Magazine engaged the author to make a survey of the country and discover what was going on under cover. He disguised himself and for four years did not visit his home or family. It is amazing and alarming that foreign agents infiltrated and financed supposedly patriotic groups and he brought out that many of these organizations such as "America First" have only gone underground and are waiting until after the war to continue their malignant work, which is in direct opposition to American ideals. The author has documentary proof of every statement in his book involving prominent people. Those who had been unable to obtain a copy of "Under Cover" were particularly grateful to Mrs. Low for her excellent digest of the book. Miss Rachel Hiller read from an article in the New Republic on Governor Warren. Mrs. H. W. Stuart who brings interesting news items as a contribution to each program spoke about Congressman Will Rogers' recent talk in San Francisco. He believes that in a two party system the solid Democratic south is one of the worst features of our political life. He believes the poll tax evil has its roots in this situation. Mrs. Stuart spoke of the fine group of young progressive Democrats in congress as one of the hopeful signs.

Miss Clara Kellogg, the president, presided and opened the meeting with one of her thought provoking and stimulating talks. The program closed with that moving poem "A Visitor at the White House" read by Miss Turner.

sel about his diet, or other messages of public import. And many were the letters, packages and checks which passed through the post-office, his favorite haven in rainy weather, addressed simply to "Pal of Carmel."

Whenever an emergency arose in his carefree life, Miss Leslie King, of the Red Cross, was there to aid him. Nor was he barred from participation in the art life of the community. His portrait, executed by Paul Beygrau, was borne triumphantly away by a San Francisco gentleman, despite sporadic efforts made to retrieve it for the walls of the City Hall, where it most certainly deserves to hang.

Gradually Pal's fame spread beyond the confines of Carmel. His unique story, written by Edith Frisbie, appeared in the Tailwaggers' Magazine, and on February 22, 1941, he was taken into the Tailwaggers' club, and public ceremonies befitting his new national prominence were conducted by Mayor Keith Evans in Devendorf Plaza, before the statue of Father Junipero Serra. Among those assembled to witness the affixing of tag 42785 on the festive ribbon bow which was provided for the occasion, only Pal himself remained unimpressed. He rolled on his back, kicked up his heels and insisted that worldly fame should not be taken seriously.

Years passed pleasantly for Pal. And then suddenly, in the midsummer of 1940, Carmel awoke to the realization that its cherished mascot had long passed his allotted three score and ten. He was losing his sparkle; his digestion had failed; he was, one had to admit sadly, exceedingly smelly. His friends reasoned that their kindliest service to him would be to call it a dog's day and put him quietly to sleep.

Pal, however, was born under a pecularily lucky star. King Mederos had come to Carmel in 1939, and not only had fallen under the spell of Pal's charm, but knew considerable about canine ailments. For many years he had been associated with Dr. A. A. Fiest, veterinarian for the Ringling Circus. He had specialized, besides, in the raising of English bulldogs.

"What Pal needs is a regulated diet and treatment for badly infected ears," said Mr. Mederos.

He took Pal home with him and at the end of two weeks had cured his ear trouble. With a new diet of prunes, cottage cheese and other selected delicacies, Pal was once more himself. Mr. Mederos brought him back to Ocean avenue and said goodbye.

Two weeks of easy living, however, had given Pal an opportunity for deep thought. Always a realist, he accepted as blithely as ever the fact that wanderlust is for youth; prunes, cottage cheese and a cushioned wicker chair for a bed are the consolations of age.

When Mr. Mederos returned in the evening to his Lincoln street home, there was Pal, awaiting him. And repeated efforts to steer him back into his former schedule were unavailing. Pal knew what he wanted. And for the past three years, he has lived in graceful retirement with his benefactor. The end came on Thursday morning as Carmel would want it to come, swiftly and without pain.

On Wednesday evening, the City Council of Carmel, realizing that Pal's end was near, took fitting and official notice. In duly recorded vote, it was decided that this well-loved dog should be buried in the grounds of the Forest Theater, his grave marked by a memorial stone. Then, as individuals, the city's councilmen started a fund to defray the expenses of Pal's tombstone. Councilman Fred Godwin, Commissioner of Health and Safety, was delegated to serve on a committee with Mr. Mederos, to choose the site, arrange for the funeral and have a suitable inscription made.

Pal was laid to rest yesterday afternoon under a lofty pine beside the bath leading into the Forest Theater, where every passerby will read his name.

Well Baby Clinic Gets Off to Good Start; 10 Attend

Ten mothers brought their babies to the first session of the P.T.A.-County Welfare Board Well Baby Clinic held December 2 at the Church of the Wayfarer.

Dr. St. Claire Lindsley gave complete physical examinations and advised the mothers on child feeding, clothing and behavior problems. She was assisted by public health nurses, Miss Ruth Larson and Miss Harriet Noyes, and two nurses' aides, Mrs. Mooney and Mrs. Kerwin.

Unlike many well baby clinics which accept only infants, Carmel's clinic will handle youngsters up to pre-school age. Next session will be January 6 at the Church of the Wayfarer from nine to twelve in the morning. Place for making advance appointment will be announced later.

Red Cross

By FRANCES DOUD

Come, and bring your scissors, if you want to help make this a real Christmas for the boys in the military hospitals. The time to do it is Saturday, December eleventh from ten a.m. on through the day. The place is the Surgical Dressings room of Carmel Chapter, American Red Cross. The work to be done is the wrapping of gift packages for the above mentioned boys, so that each one of them will receive an individual Christmas present, with the comforting knowledge that someone has taken the time and trouble to pack and wrap it just for him. The gifts and wrappings will be there, at Red Cross headquarters, so all you need do is bring yourself, your willingness to help, and your scissors. It's nice work, and you can get it!

Monterey Peninsula Winces at Publicity

On Dr. Schaller's testimony, it rested its case.

First defense witness, Dr. Mast Wolfson, Monterey physician, testified that those of his patients that he had sent to Von Urban were not suffering from physical ailments but were "mentally ill"; that he himself was a psychiatrist but Von Urban had a special gift for acting in the capacity of father confessor. He stated that one of the prosecution witnesses, one of his own patients, was addicted to over-indulgence in alcohol and tantrums, and enlivened his testimony by demonstrating with voice and gesture what he meant by "tantrum." Another high point in his performance was his passing over the water tumbler to drink out of the court pitcher.

Over the vigorous protests of the prosecution, which maintained that Von Urban's qualifications as a pyschologist had no bearing on whether or not he was practicing medicine without a license, the defense introduced Dr. Frank Hinman, neurologist connected with the University of California who said he had referred patients to Von Urban; and Portia Bell Hume, instructor at the University of California who said that Von Urban had attended the University as a graduate student.

Prosecution is in charge of Deputy District Attorney Charles McHarry and Deputy Attorney General Martin. Defense is being conducted by John Milton Thompson and Neil Cunningham.

WACs Reach Quota For Peninsula

Despite the nation-wide announcement that the WAC enlistments had fallen far short of expectations, the Monterey Peninsula gave it all the guns and got its quota 100 per cent. Enlistments thus far include Miss Rena Thomsen, who replaced her nephew, a war casualty, Miss Gail Johnson, of Carmel, Miss Ardys Church, Miss Bertha Gaddy, Miss Betty Hatcher, Miss Ruth Gomez, and one other recruit whose application is pending but was accepted as part of the quota. "Not in the least considered the end of a recruiting drive," Sgt. Thad McCarty, local recruiter said, "we have found the people in this community are very much alive to the WAC program and the increasing list of interested women is very encouraging."
